

CCAP13 – Agile Digital Services (AgileDS™) Practitioner

Learn how to develop effective digital services in an Agile way with AgileDS™ training and certification

Description

AgileDS training and certification is based on the Agile Digital Services (AgileDS) Handbook, published by the Agile Business Consortium.

Offering practical advice and guidance, the Handbook enables organizations to develop a consistent approach, common language and skilled workforce for the successful design and delivery of digital services.

By obtaining the AgileDS™ Practitioner Certification, you will have demonstrated how to apply and tailor the AgileDS™ guidance to a given scenario situation.

Here is what you will learn:

- Applying the underpinning philosophy and principles of Agile Digital Services in a project situation.
- Configuring the lifecycle of an agile digital services project to a given scenario.
- Evaluating the artefacts that are created during an agile digital services project.
- Understanding the mechanisms for planning, controlling and governing the project.
- Clarifying the various roles and responsibilities within an agile digital services project to identify appropriate candidates.
- Applying popular agile techniques, e.g. MoSCoW prioritisation, timeboxing and iterative development.
- Prioritising and managing requirements.
- Testing and measuring progress.
